

The School Health Listserve

For the week of October 24, 2005

The School Health Listserve provides news clippings and resources for school leaders and educators. We hope you find this information useful.

Please note that this week's School Leaders Listserve addresses student anger management. To register to receive the School Leaders Listserve, please email us at listserv@principalsonline.com.

Best regards,

Principals Online

P.S. This week marks the launch of the Principals Online website, and the release of the inaugural issue of Principals Online Magazine. Please visit www.principalsonline.com on Friday, October 28, for a variety of online resources for school leaders.

Best regards,

Principals Online

School Health News & Resources

New YouthLens Issues

A four-page research brief series that synthesizes information on critical topics related to youth reproductive health and HIV prevention.

Three Federally Funded Abstinence-Only Sex Education Programs Instill 'Fear' in Students, Teach False Information

SEICUS Report

Videogame hits at kids' obesity

Drag, drop and blast off. The government's latest attempt to curb childhood obesity engages kids on their home turf: Computer games.

Violent Images May Mess With Kids' Wiring

At Indiana University School of Medicine, psychologist William Kronenberger has teamed with radiologists to look at the brain activity of children playing violent video games. What they found suggests that violent video games might shift the way the brain works.

Candy Calculator

How many calories and how much fat and saturated fat are you and your family consuming when you munch [on selected candies]? Use this calculator to find out." Candies include candy corn, chocolate bars, malted milk balls, and licorice twists. From a media company focused on parents and children. LII Item: <http://lii.org/cs/lii/view/item/19238>

The School Health Listserve

The Changing Face of Skin Care

2004 series on the rise in popularity of the "'cosmeceutical' -- a product marketed as a cosmetic that purportedly has biologically active ingredients that affect the user." Includes a slide show of some products, such as wrinkle creams marketed as alternatives to Botox injections, alpha hydroxy acid, hyaluronic acid, prescription vitamin A creams and gels, and vitamin C sunscreens. From BusinessWeek magazine. LII Item: <http://lii.org/cs/lii/view/item/19231>

This listserv message sponsored by _____

COMING SOON!

Principals Online

Online resources for school-leaders.

www.principalsonline.com

LAUNCH DATE: OCTOBER 28, 2005

DOWNLOAD THE INAUGURAL ISSUE OF PRINCIPALS ONLINE MAGAZINE
TOPIC: PARENT RELATIONS

© 2005 Principals Online
Principals Online & the School Leaders Listserv are published by Shannon & McCall Consulting.
All rights reserved.